

HELPING YOUR ANXIOUS FRIEND

WHAT TO KNOW

- Anxiety occurs when we believe that something bad is going to happen to someone or something that we care deeply about. It can impact our thoughts, feelings, behaviors and even our bodies.
- Anxious thoughts may lead to nightmares, confusion, overthinking, difficulty remembering things and procrastination.
- Anxious feelings may lead to struggles with panic, depressive thoughts, hopelessness, worry, anger and confusion.
- Physical symptoms of anxiety include sweating, insomnia, rapid heartbeat, headaches, trouble breathing or shortness of breath, stomach issues, restlessness, chest pain and muscle aches. These come from the body's natural response to a presented threat referred to as 'fight or flight' which causes the body to release hormones that fuel immediate action.
- Stress or Anxiety? Everyone experiences stress and anxiety at one time or another. Stress is a response to a threat in a situation. Anxiety is a reaction to the stress.
- Statistics show that more than 18% of adults in the US suffer from anxiety, that's 40 million people!
- Anxiety can be situational, social or general. Anxiety is NOT a result of lack of trust or knowledge in the Gospel. It is a result of being human!

WHAT TO DO

- Be Calming. Be Present.
 - The ministry of presence and simply being a listening ear is by far the most helpful ministry you can offer.
 - Empathize, normalize and encourage your friend through prayer.
 - Remember: We are more alike than different! Seek to find commonality between the sufferer and yourself We ALL experience anxiety and stress in this broken world.
- Stay humble! Only God can bring peace of mind. Don't try to fix your friend. Admit your limitations and seek out advice.
- Encourage your friend to reduce news intake or triggering situations.
- Offer to walk with your friend. Being in creation can help remind them of the characteristics of God: His power, design, love and nearness.
- Practice/model selfcare. Encourage them by offering healthy foods, water and tea.
- Model breathing exercises with them. This calms the mind, flushes excess hormones and helps to restore rational thought. Offer 'breath prayers.' Help with grounding exercises.
- Give Scripture to help your friend meditate. Play calming, scripture-based songs.

- Physicalize their Faith

- Give them a stone or symbol to hold on to as they recall God's promises.

- Psalm 18:2 "The Lord is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer, my God, my rock in whom I take refuge, my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold."

- Encourage them to do something they enjoy with you. Things like art, cooking, gardening, hiking, serving or music can draw them out of themselves and to God. Psalm 34:8 "Oh, taste and see that the Lord is good!"

- Encourage them to speak to a counselor and/or physician who can support and provide loving accountability for the use of medication and their desire to uncover the source of anxiety.

- Encourage them on all the small steps of growth. God is on the move!

- Encourage "thought journals"

- Write down anxieties. They may seem enumerable at times, but they are numerable. Philippians 4:4-9

- What troubles are for today and how can we entrust ourselves to God? 1 Peter 2:23 "...but continued entrusting himself to him who judges justly."
