

1. It's your brother's turn to take out the trash, but your mom asks you to do it.
  - a. You tell her you'll do it, but only if your brother takes your turn next time.
  - b. You do it with a smile.
  - c. You refuse to go.
2. Your teacher asks you to erase the whiteboard for him.
  - a. You erase the whiteboard and then you clean the eraser.
  - b. You erase the whiteboard.
  - c. You ask someone else to erase the board.
3. Your teacher assigns you to help a classmate who is struggling to read.
  - a. You gladly help.
  - b. You help but with an attitude.
  - c. You gladly help him in class and then you offer to help him after class is over.
4. Your dad asks you to pick up the trash from the car.
  - a. You pick up the trash and then finish putting your puzzle together.
  - b. You clean up the trash and also wipe down the inside of the car.
  - c. You tell your dad that your sister should clean the trash because most of it was hers anyway.
5. Your sick neighbor asks you to help with watering their plants.
  - a. You water the plants and go back to playing frisbee.
  - b. You ignore them and keep playing frisbee.
  - c. You water the plants and then put the hose away.
6. Your little sister wants to go out and play, but you need to clean your room first.
  - a. You put your clothes and toys away, make your bed, and then help your sister make her bed.
  - b. You put your clothes and toys away, and make your bed.
  - c. You intentionally put your clothes away slowly so your sister can finish helping you clean after she is done cleaning her room.
7. You and your friends are playing with your favorite toys at recess. Suddenly, a new kid joins your group and asks if they can play too, but your friends don't want to include the new kid or share their toys with the new kid.
  - a. You agree with your friends and ignore the new kid.
  - b. You offer to share your favorite toy with the new kid.
  - c. You introduce the new kid to your friends, convince them to let the new kid join the group, and let the new kid play with your toy.
8. Your teacher assigns a fun group project, and you're excited to work with your best friend. But when the groups are announced, your best friend is in a different group, and you're with classmates you don't know well. It feels unfair and disappointing.
  - a. You put your feelings aside and join the group with a slight attitude.
  - b. You sulk and refuse to cooperate with your assigned group.
  - c. You participate actively, listen to your teammates' ideas, and work together to create a fantastic project.