What will we be doing?

Daily we will go into parks to run small VBS like meetings with families from the community.

What do I have to know before this trip?

Be ready to share your testimony is all that we ask. We will provide all the needed training for the time you are in AK.

FAQ:

- Do we sleep in igloos? Maybe and you should definitely ask Alaskans if they sleep in an igloo.
- Will I need to bring my winter attire? We will discuss clothing at a future meeting, but no.
- How many pairs of shoes will I need? Sneaks and if you plan to hike, maybe hiking boots
- Will I be able to see Russia? No, but you will see plenty of Russian Orthodox believers
- Will I be attacked by a bear or other wildlife? Well it is the “Last Frontier”
- Will the Alaskans like me? Not if you ask them if they sleep in igloos.
- Can I fish for salmon? The local’s are cool with it... but you definitely need a license the fish and game folks mean business... Alaska's Kenai River offers silvers, pinks, reds and kings from May through October, where salmon weighing up to 98 pounds have been captured.
- Should I put my foot in the mud? NO!!!
- Where do we exchange our currency to buy things in Alaska? Uh... well....
- What time do the Northern Lights come out? LOL...
- Will we see penguins? Ok this is just getting silly
