Relaxing into Faithfulness

Dear Friends,

As summer is upon us and I have been pondering the direction God is leading us in terms of what it means to be faithful to our calling as his people I have had the sense that there is in all of us the need to “relax into faithfulness.” And I wonder how possible this is for us. Do we know how to relax into God’s provision for us? We want to be faithful, but how well do we understand God’s faithfulness?

As I write to you we are preparing to return to Israel where I am always so reminded of God’s enduring faithfulness. With this reminder comes the bounty of times God tells us in his word to rest in him; to be still; to trust.

I think specifically of Exodus when the people of Israel had their backs to the Red Sea. Through Moses God said, “Do not be afraid, stand firm, and see the deliverance that the Lord will accomplish for you today.” (Exodus 14:13) What captures me in this reading is that in their distress and panic Israel is told to stand still and let God deliver them. This is repeated throughout scripture with the prophets and with Jesus. We like the idea, but do we really begin to understand what being still for God means? I want to because I need to personally and as a pastor. I want to live unflappably because it is testimony to God’s sovereign care. Stillness that will not be interrupted by the chaos or threats of the world is compelling. How do we learn in our advancing years to trade anxiety for stillness? Now there is a question worth seeking to live in response to.

And this is a season for us to learn as a body to live this response. As our Presbytery ponders our request to move to a new Presbyterian room in God’s house and as the General Assembly meets in Detroit June 14-21, our calling will be to look at our journey through the lens of God’s upper story as we continue to study it.

Have you noticed in scripture that God never calls us to worry or be anxious or to look for more to distract ourselves from listening to him? Instead we hear Jesus saying, “Come to ME all who labor and are carrying heavy burdens”. We hear Isaiah say, “In returning and rest you shall be saved; in quietness and trust shall be your strength.” It is as we relax into God’s faithfulness that we display a reliance that glorifies God’s name. And I think this is the most essential reason God has us in this chapter of listening.

Summer is a great time for stillness and listening. I love the quiet of our high desert evenings; time to look up and remember how utterly in charge God is and that he has redeemed us by his Son! Your session is listening and will have some input from the Presbytery this summer. They will be keeping you posted as God directs us. At the time of this writing there is nothing more to report except to say that we know God is at work and sense that the Presbytery is doing their part.

While we wait and listen let us praise God for the Messiah and that in him all things hold together. I look forward to a time this summer to share reflections of this gained by our team from Israel. Thank you for your prayers.

Faithfully relaxing with you into God’s faithfulness in Jesus Christ,

Bruce – Philippians 1:3-6!

SUMMERTIME!

Summer presents some interesting challenges and opportunities in ministry. On one hand, it can be hard to stay in touch: people disappear for large chunks of time on vacations and you miss out on the easy face time with friends that is one of the upsides of school (underrated – you don't appreciate it until it's gone). On the other hand, summer is a great opportunity for Sabbath-rest, reflection, and new experiences. Lots of ministry rhythms go on hiatus for summer, but that doesn't mean we stop being God's people, ruled by the Great Commandment (Matthew 22:36-40) and charged with the Great Commission (Matthew 28:18-20).

Here's our challenge for summer: rest well. There's a big difference between resting well and resting poorly. Resting poorly often looks like over-indulgence; freed from the constraints of our normal schedules, we are tempted to binge on treats and unsustainable patterns. It's like going off a diet and eating an entire tub of store-bought cookie dough. It might seem exciting at first, but you're going to have a bad time.

Resting well is all about the big picture. God created us and sustains us. He knows how we work as living beings – our needs and our limitations – and his plan for us is the only plan that can provide us with perfect satisfaction and balance. Jesus says, "I am the vine, you are the branches. Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing. Whoever does not abide in me is thrown away like a branch and withers..." (John 15:5-6a) Therefore, whether we work or we rest – we have to stay connected to the vine.

Rest well. Make sure the Bible is in your bag of books for the beach. Spend intentional time in Christian fellowship (Hebrews 10:24-25). Try out some new spiritual practices (journaling prayer, music, new books). Live as Jesus did by serving others (GraceWorks is a great way to connect with mission organizations). God knows exactly what we need to live life to the full – and that is why he gave us Jesus and the Holy Spirit. DAN

Psalms, Hymns, and Songs from the Spirit -

Colossians 3:16 - Let the message of Christ dwell among you richly as you teach and admonish one another with all wisdom through psalms, hymns, and songs from the Spirit, singing to God with gratitude in your hearts. (NIV)

Periodically someone will come up to me and ask the burning question, "Why do we have to sing _____"? Imagine that blank filled with a song title, a type of song, or a genre. Our God is a creative God, and He uses all types of things to get our attention and keep it focused on Him. When we have an open mind and let our preferences move aside, we can experience new and different ways of expressing our love for God. Doing so may broaden our experience whether we are young, old or in-between. We might decide then that we really do like or don't really mind that "thing" as much as we thought. Or we might decide that we really don't like it. Regardless, and as in all of life, the experience of trying or tasting or singing or participating in something a little out of our comfort zone helps us in our witness to each other and to the world. And the Colossians passage tells us to allow the message of Christ to dwell among us by teaching and witnessing to Him through different experiences. Consider the message, not just the style.

Over the course of the past year I have devoted this column to writing about worship. In this and in columns for the foreseeable future I plan to write about different forms of worship music. Looking at the above title tells you pretty much what will be discussed. Each month I plan to bring a psalm, a familiar hymn and its contemporary praise counterpart together in an effort to show the connectional nature of Christian music from across the ages. In the discussion will be a little about each author and how the song came into being.

So before closing this month's column, I would like to briefly define the three items you see in the Colossians passage: psalm, hymn and spiritual song. All definitions are drawn from Webster's Dictionary.

A psalm is defined as a sacred song or poem used in worship. The word literally means "twanging of the harp" from psallein to pluck, play a stringed instrument. This is the word we see in our translations. Some of the ancient psalms in the church were actually odes. The word ode comes from Greek oide and means literally, song. It was also a lyric poem usually marked by exaltation of feeling and style, varying in length of line, and complexity of stanza forms.

The word hymn is defined as a song of praise to God; a metrical composition adapted for singing in a religious service; or a song of praise or joy. The word paean is a more ancient way of saying hymn. Hymn comes from the Latin hymnus for song of praise and from the Greek hymnos.

Spiritual songs or songs from the Spirit are songs relating to sacred matters that have been God (Spirit) inspired or breathed out. Often, when telling the story of how the song came into being, the songwriter will tell you that the seed of the song came in a moment as if directly written by God. And, many will tell you it was as if taking dictation from the Holy Spirit!

So, I hope you enjoy this next series of columns and we will all learn that a variety of church music is a good tool for building up the Body of Christ. We can worship our infinite, creative God in old and new ways. He will accept it all if we bring our praise in the right frame of heart and mind. So let us all praise Him with our hearts and ears wide open as we look for Christ in the music!

Sing with joy,

Karen
