Cell Group Discussion Questions

Breaking the Ice:

1. What was your favorite Disney movie growing up – and which character did you most identify with?

Digging Deeper:

2. We learned in this Sunday's teaching that Jesus worked from His belovedness - rather than working for His belovedness. In what area of your life are you most tempted to prove your worth through how you perform, what you do, and what you achieve?

3. We see that in the life and ministry of Jesus, His identity was grounded in who the Father said He was and not by what others thought or said about Him. Whose approval or opinion has the greatest influence over how you see yourself – and why?

4. What practices could help you hear and trust the Father's voice more deeply than the voices of other people?

5. What possessions, experiences, or signs of success are you most tempted to use as evidence that you are doing well or that your life matters?

Practice for the Week:

6. Jan Richardson once wrote a poem entitled "Beloved is where we begin". This week, take some time to read and reflect on it.

Each morning, before reaching for your phone or beginning your work, begin by resting in your identity as God's beloved. Pause and pray:

"In Christ, I am God's beloved. I am not defined solely by what I do or how I perform. I am not defined what others think about me. Nor am I defined by what I have.

I am in Christ - the beloved of God. He is with me. He is for me. And He delights in me.
