A scenic view of a river flowing through a forest. The river is shallow and clear, revealing numerous smooth, light-colored rocks on the bottom. The water is a light brownish-yellow color, possibly due to fallen leaves or sediment. The banks are covered with dense trees and foliage. On the left bank, some trees have yellow and orange autumn leaves, while others are green. On the right bank, the trees are mostly dark green and evergreen. The sky is visible in the background, showing a blue sky with some white clouds. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and natural.
